Quinta da Regaleira palace is situated in Sintra within a mystical landscaped garden with hidden nooks and crannies including wells, tunnels, turrets and all sorts of Masonic and hermetic allegories

Grande Oriente Lusitano is the oldest masonic potency in Portugal, founded in 1802 with a chart from the Grand Lodge of England has in its premises a Museum worth to be visited

Cervejaria Trindade in this former convent founded in 1294 and destroyed by 1755 earthquake, a brewery has been built in 1836 and since then it became a place where Freemasons always met. There we may find several walls with Masonic iconography tiles and, of course, have delicious beers with good seafood

Terreiro do Paço was the royal palace as from the XV century and it also is an open-air Masonic Temple. Rebuilt after 1755 earthquake by order of the prime minister at the time, the Marquis of Pombal, that also was a Freemason, initiated in Vienna to the time he was ambassador there.
